

BOLTON MIXED-USE

Atlanta, Georgia

Bolton Village is a TSW designed mixed-use community in Northwest Atlanta. TSW was retained to design three of the mixed-use buildings at Bolton Village: buildings A, E and F. The buildings' exteriors are comprised of stucco, painted steel and brick in a locally derived architecture blended with contemporary detailing.

above: Village aerial view

Building A, the result of a public/private partnership, (shown) has become the neighborhood's hub since completion; with it's components of office, public library, and medical services. This two-story building located at the prominent corner of Bolton Road and James Jackson Parkway contains 26,000 sf. of commercial use. With verandas, porches and outdoor terraces, it is a place people want to be. Buildings E and F, located off Bolton Road will both be four stories tall, with Building E having a lower commercial level with three levels of residential above, and Building F will be four levels of residential.