

WESTSIDE SINGLE-FAMILY RENOVATIONS

Atlanta, Georgia

TSW Architecture has been helping young families grow their homes in the Westside area of Atlanta with renovation designs for single-family residences. The three projects featured here are all in the Underwood Hills neighborhood, just west of I-75 and a very short drive from the popular retail shops and restaurants found at the White Provisions live/work/play district.

15 White Street: Entertaining had always been cramped for this family. TSW designed a second story addition which doubled the square footage by moving all private areas upstairs, leaving the downstairs with a greatly expanded kitchen, dining and family room. Exterior details on the expansion were carefully carried over from the house's historic bungalow style.

1843 Claremont Street: The high-ceiling addition to the rear of this small cottage doubled the square footage to 2600 and created a light-filled expansive kitchen and retreat area. Two bedrooms and baths were also added. The new large front porch, and the home's exterior, is designed in a rustic Greek Revival style.

1187 Mantissa Street: TSW showed the owners (a young family) how their living, dining, and kitchen areas could be significantly improved with only modest "bump-out" expansions. As importantly, the design work provided plans for a future upper level expansion for new bedrooms, baths, and a home office. The new exterior face lift builds from romantic cottage precedents found nearby.
